

Call for Papers:

'Conflict in ancient Culture'

5th Annual Birmingham
Egyptology Symposium

11th May 2018

University of Birmingham, UK

We invite abstract submissions from postgraduates and independent researchers pertaining to the individual's interpretation of the above theme, which can include, but is not limited to, notions of conflict as expressed or evident in archaeology, art, language, history, epigraphy, reception and perspectives of ancient Egypt, and relations between Egypt and other ancient civilisations.

Presentations may take the form of a 20-minute paper AND/OR an A0 research poster

Abstracts:

Maximum of 300 words, to be submitted by Monday 22nd January at 5pm to symposium@birminghamegyptology.co.uk

Confirmation of accepted submissions will be emailed by early February. Following the Symposium, presenters will be invited to submit their papers or posters as articles to be considered for publication in the Birmingham Egyptology Journal. NB: Presenters must make their own arrangements for transportation of posters, when applicable.

For further information, please visit the Birmingham Egyptology website at www.birminghamegyptology.co.uk. Contact us at the above email address to register your interest or ask any questions.